PREFACE

THE Fifth Edition of the Guide follows the plan of the preceding editions. The Fourth Edition was published in 1920 and a Supplement in 1923. Since that time a considerable number of periodicals have ceased publication; others have changed titles; combinations and mergers have been made; many changes in the addresses of publishers and in the publishers' prices have taken place so that this new Edition has been compiled from original sources. There were less than one-fifth of the titles of the Fourth Edition that could be used. Every list of current American periodicals such as; the lists indexed by the H. W. Wilson Company; the Ayer and Son's Directory of Newspapers and Periodicals; the Library of Congress Catalog of Copyright Entries—Part 2, Periodicals; the current titles in the Supplement 1930 of the Union List of Serials and numerous minor lists have been checked. It has been impossible to secure full information of all the periodicals. In many cases, the subscription price, the frequency of publication, the date of the first number and the like are lacking. However, the users of the Guide, undoubtedly, would prefer to find the title and publisher even though the entries of the other data are incomplete.

In the case of Colleges and Universities, the official bulletins and circulars are not included. Contributions, Studies, Memoirs, Proceedings, and Reports, of colleges, universities, learned, scientific and other societies, which appear annually or less frequently than once a year are not, as a rule, included. The U. S. Government periodical publications are included, so also are the publications of the state agricultural colleges and experiment stations.

The entries follow the usual form. A periodical with a distinctive title is entered under the first word, not an article, of the current form of the title. A periodical without a distinctive title published by a society or institution is entered under the first word of the current form of the name of the society or under the name of the state or city with the name of the office of issue.

The subjects used in Part 2, the Classified List, follow rather closely the list in Sears—List of Subject Headings for Small Libraries, but modifications seemed desirable. The tendency has been to use specific heads instead of grouping all titles under the large subjects; as an illustration—the periodicals issued by the I. O. O. F. and the F. and A. M. are listed under Odd fellows and Free Masons not under Fraternal Organizations. Cross references are freely used to assist the user of the Guide in locating the periodical he desires. "See also" is used freely to direct the user to the subjects under which magazines of a similar nature may be found. The subjects treated in periodicals are not always clearly stated in the title so that classification by title is certain to place some periodicals under wrong heads.

In placing this Edition of the Guide in the hands of the public, the compiler sincerely hopes that, with all its imperfection, the Guide may prove to be an indispensable tool.
